PRESIDENT’S REPORT

Update – FACTS Installment Payment Plan

David Hilquist shared the following LSJ Editorial with the Board.

To The Point
August 8, 2009

LCC money plan is necessary
Lansing Community College is making a necessary and smart move as it revamps the way it handles tuition and financial aid transactions with students. Seems in past years, the community college has carried millions in debt involving students who either didn't pay their tuition or for students who owed a payback of financial aid that had been received for a class the student subsequently dropped.
Now, LCC will require those who owe money to sign up for a payment plan if they are trying to enroll for new classes.
That's only prudent. LCC can't let students attend for free. Likewise, LCC can't let students keep financial aid for classes they dropped.
Change will be difficult, but, in this case, it's very necessary.
